Winemaking requires knowledge, commitment and time. It's a long and slow process, but when terroir and winemaking skills combine, the finished product is worth the wait!

Today it's hard to imagine that Mijas was once a very important viticulture area. Actually one of the few local artisanal wineproducers left is Viña Tamisa. We will first visit the beautiful vineyard, close to the village and talk about the benefits of traditional cultivation and harvesting of grapes in accordance with the principles of organic farming. When coming to the bodega we'll taste different wines combined with tapas. Possibility to buy wine.

When: Sunday 18th September at 10 am

Where: Meeting at the Tourist Information Office in Mijas Pueblo

Participants: Max 20 persons

Price: 25.00 €

MEMORIES

Memories from Mijas before the tourism a tribute to Mijas and its people, a village on the crossroad between the past and the present. This tour takes you to hidden streets and emblematic places, to observe the transformation of the village during the last 100 years.

Join this walk and explore the most recent history of the village. Based on photos from “gold days” we try to find out what Mijas was like before the arrival of tourism and will hear how local people managed poverty and hunger, dictatorship, the first foreigners and the “clash of cultures”. On our way through history you will enjoy a drink and tapa.
